Your Guide to Rutgers

On July 1, 2013, we enter an exciting new era for Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey. I am pleased to welcome the many talented faculty and staff from the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey to our vibrant community. Together, we will carry out the most significant transformation of higher education in our state in the past 50 years and make Rutgers one of the top comprehensive research universities in the nation.

The task of integrating our people, services, and systems has been highly complex and will continue for some time to come, but one thing is clear: we are now united as one Rutgers, with one accord. This guide is intended to familiarize faculty and staff—those already here and those joining us—with Rutgers’ newly expanded core components and key resources.

Established in 1766 as one of the nine colonial colleges, Rutgers has grown into a world-class institution with 33 schools and colleges, 65,000 students, and more than 20,000 faculty and staff. Through the centuries, Rutgers’ commitment to education, research, and service has provided the constant as it became the state’s land-grant university and later the state university and New Jersey’s only public member of the Association of American Universities. We now begin a transformation that will propel us and our state to even greater heights.

I look forward to our work together.

Sincerely,

Bob Barchi
RUTGERS BASICS

From fast facts to organizational charts, this section will give you an overview of Rutgers’ mission, achievements, structure, and locations.
Facts and Figures
Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, is a leading national research university and the state’s preeminent, comprehensive public institution of higher education. Rutgers is dedicated to teaching that meets the highest standards of excellence; to conducting research that breaks new ground; and to providing services, solutions, clinical trials, and patient care that help individuals and the local, national, and global communities where they live. The facts and statistics on these pages are for the newly integrated Rutgers.

Our Mission
As the major comprehensive public research university in the state’s system of higher education, Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey, has the three-fold mission of research, teaching, and service. The university aspires to be broadly recognized as among the best public universities and as being preeminent in research, excellent in teaching, and committed to community.

Our Faculty
- More than 9,000 full- and part-time faculty across all campuses
- 38 Rutgers faculty are in the National Academies

Our Students
- 65,326 students from all 50 states and more than 115 countries
- 45,059 undergraduates and 20,267 graduate students
- 86% of all students are New Jersey residents and 14% are from out of state

Our Staff
- More than 15,400 full- and part-time staff members across all campuses
- More than 2,000 are Rutgers alumni

Our Alumni
- Nearly 450,000 alumni live in all 50 states and on six continents
- Approximately 297,000 of our alumni live in New Jersey

Our History
1766: Chartered in 1766 as the all-male Queen’s College in New Brunswick.
1800
1825: Renamed Rutgers College, honoring trustee and Revolutionary War veteran Colonel Henry Rutgers.
1864: Prevailed over Princeton to become New Jersey’s land-grant institution. From an early emphasis on agriculture and the mechanical arts, today the nation’s 74 land-grant institutions have expanded their mission to include a broad range of teaching, research, and service activities.
New Jersey’s Land-Grant Institution
America’s land-grant institutions were created by the Morrill Act of 1862 to serve the states and their citizens by disseminating practical knowledge developed at institutions of higher learning. They initially focused on agriculture and the mechanical arts, but today the nation’s 74 land-grant institutions have expanded their mission to include a broad range of teaching, research, and service activities. One service Rutgers provides as New Jersey’s land-grant institution is our New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station Cooperative Extension offices, which are in every county in the state, helping citizens through running 4-H clubs, providing agricultural and resource management, and helping encourage healthy lifestyles. Other land-grant institutions include Cornell, MIT, Ohio State, and Penn State.

A Distinguished AAU Institution
Rutgers is one of the nation’s leading comprehensive research universities and the only public university in New Jersey in the Association of American Universities (AAU). AAU institutions are North America’s 62 leading research universities demonstrating high-quality academic research and scholarship, disciplinary breadth, and strong undergraduate, graduate, and professional education programs. Rutgers and Princeton are New Jersey’s only AAU members.

Top 25 in the U.S.
Rutgers is ranked among the nation’s top 25 public universities by
- U.S. News & World Report, Best Colleges
- Wall Street Journal, Top Recruiter Picks/25 Hottest Colleges
- Center for Measuring University Performance, Top Public Research Universities

History and Tradition
Rutgers is the 8th oldest institution of higher education in the nation.

1918: The New Jersey College for Women—now Douglass Residential College—opens. It was the first time women were allowed to attend a Rutgers college.

1946: The University of Newark, now Rutgers–Newark, joins the institution.

1950: The College of South Jersey, now Rutgers–Camden, joins the institution.

1956: Rutgers and the State enter into a compact (the “Rutgers Law of 1956”), whereby Rutgers becomes the state university and an instrumentality of the State of New Jersey.
A Different Sort of Homecoming

Robert Wood Johnson Medical School was actually established in 1961 as Rutgers Medical School. It united with what became UMDNJ in 1970, and took its current name in 1986. With the newly integrated Rutgers, the school returns to its roots.

Rutgers Traditions

Color: Scarlet
Motto: Sun of righteousness, shine upon the West also (Sol iustitiae et occidentem illustra)

Rutgers Athletics

New Brunswick: Scarlet Knights
Newark: Scarlet Raiders
Camden: Scarlet Raptors

CIC Member University

Rutgers is a member of the Committee on Institutional Cooperation (CIC), the nation’s premier higher education consortium of top-tier research institutions. The 13-member consortium includes the University of Chicago, University of Illinois, Northwestern, the University of Michigan, Penn State, Ohio State, and Purdue. Faculty and staff at CIC universities engage in a wide range of collaborative opportunities to advance their research and scholarship.

Our History

1961: Rutgers establishes New Jersey’s first public medical school.
1970: The medical school is transferred from Rutgers to what would become the University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey (UMDNJ).
1972: Rutgers College becomes coeducational.
1989: Rutgers is invited to join the Association of American Universities.
2013: New Jersey Medical and Health Sciences Education Restructuring Act transfers most of UMDNJ to Rutgers.

Our Reach in the Garden State

From the Shore to the Highlands, Rutgers directly touches the lives of New Jersey residents far beyond the university’s campuses. With the integrated legacy UMDNJ units, our reach is broader than ever.

- Major Clinical Components: Includes clinics, health centers, institutes, and faculty practices operated by Rutgers University.
- Cooperative Extension Offices: Run by the Rutgers Agricultural Experiment Station, these offices are in all 21 New Jersey counties. They provide help with 4-H clubs, agriculture, family and community health sciences, marine science, and natural resources and the environment.
- Main Clinical Affiliates: Teaching hospitals and other health care facilities that provide a wide range of clinical experiences for patients and teaching, research, and learning opportunities for Rutgers faculty and students.
- Additional Locations: Satellite campuses and other locations where we offer degree programs, courses, and services.
OUR MAJOR LOCATIONS

Rutgers locations share the common advantages of being situated in one of the country’s most remarkable cultural regions. We have a presence through the major locations described here, as well as cooperative extension offices, business centers, clinical affiliates, and other additional locations.

Rutgers–New Brunswick Campus

Located in the city of New Brunswick, the township of Piscataway, and in several surrounding municipalities, Rutgers–New Brunswick is made up of the smaller sections of Busch, College Avenue, Douglass, George H. Cook, and Livingston. It is the location of the university’s central administration and is the birthplace of Rutgers University and an internationally renowned academic powerhouse.

Rutgers–Newark Campus

Cosmopolitan Rutgers–Newark is a dynamic, green urban campus in the University Heights district just a mile away from the Rutgers Health Sciences Campus at Newark. Perennially ranked as the nation’s most diverse campus by U.S. News & World Report, Rutgers–Newark is home to celebrated schools and research centers with local, national, and global impact.

Rutgers–Camden Campus

Rutgers–Camden is one of the leading institutions of higher education in southern New Jersey, anchored in a city alive with community spirit. Inviting and tree-lined, Rutgers–Camden is situated in the vibrant Camden Waterfront district, right across the Delaware River from historic Philadelphia.

Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences (RBHS)

This major new health care education, research, and clinical division at Rutgers comprises all legacy UMDNJ schools and clinical units, several existing Rutgers units with key health-related missions, and two research units that historically were jointly operated by Rutgers and UMDNJ. RBHS units are on and in multiple Rutgers campuses and locations. The following places are home to distinguished RBHS schools, clinics, and research centers that improve the lives of individuals in the neighborhood and around the world.

- Rutgers Health Sciences Campus at Newark
- Rutgers Health Sciences at New Brunswick
- Rutgers Health Sciences at Piscataway
- Rutgers Health Sciences at Scotch Plains
- Rutgers Health Sciences at Stratford
Our Structure

As a result of the New Jersey Medical and Health Sciences Education Restructuring Act, signed into law by Governor Christie on August 22, 2012, and taking effect on July 1, 2013, Rutgers has a new structure.

Rutgers now has 33 schools and colleges, hundreds of research centers and institutes, and dozens of clinical care units. Highlights about changes to Rutgers as a result of the statute are explained here.

Legacy UMDNJ Units

With integration, Rutgers includes all of the units of the former University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey except the following:

- University Hospital in Newark is now an independent hospital, although it continues to be the primary teaching hospital for New Jersey Medical School, Rutgers School of Dental Medicine, and the School of Nursing.
- The School of Osteopathic Medicine is now a school of Rowan University.
- Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences programs at Stratford transfer to Rowan University.

Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences Units

Rutgers Biomedical and Health Sciences, headed by its own chancellor reporting directly to Rutgers' president, will serve as the umbrella organization for the units listed below:

From UMDNJ

- Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences gsbs.rutgers.edu
- Rutgers School of Dental Medicine (formerly New Jersey Dental School) sdm.rutgers.edu
- New Jersey Medical School njms.rutgers.edu
- Robert Wood Johnson Medical School rwjms.rutgers.edu
- School of Health Related Professions shrp.rutgers.edu
- School of Nursing sn.rutgers.edu
- School of Public Health sph.rutgers.edu
- University Behavioral Health Care ubhc.rutgers.edu
- Cancer Institute of New Jersey, the state’s only National Cancer Institute-designated Comprehensive Cancer Center, reporting directly to Rutgers president cinj.org

Assistant professor of ophthalmology Albert Khouri (left) instructs two ophthalmology residents. The ophthalmology program at Rutgers New Jersey Medical School is dedicated to teaching current and future providers of eye care, providing outstanding compassionate patient care, and developing cures for blindness.
Governance Changes

The statute has established the formation of several new governing and advisory bodies:

- Rutgers–Camden Board of Directors
- Rowan University/Rutgers–Camden Board of Governors
- Rutgers–New Brunswick Advisory Board
- Rutgers–Newark Advisory Board

Furthermore, it added a chancellor for Rutgers–New Brunswick and expanded the Rutgers Board of Governors from 11 to 15 members, with eight appointed by the New Jersey governor and seven selected by the Rutgers Board of Trustees.

Faculty’s Role

Faculty play a major role in guiding university policy and procedures through shared governance with the boards and senior administration. The Rutgers University Senate is a universitywide representative body with several additional faculty councils.

New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station Board of Managers

The Board of Managers serves as a two-way communications link between the Rutgers’ New Jersey Agricultural Experiment Station and the County Boards of Agriculture. The board also advocates for the experiment station and provides advice to the executive dean and director of the experiment station on affairs concerning the experiment station’s programs.

Rowan University/Rutgers–Camden Board of Governors

The new Rowan University/Rutgers–Camden Board of Governors provides joint oversight for any new health sciences programs to be created by either institution or by the two institutions collaboratively.

Advisory Boards

Rutgers–New Brunswick Advisory Board

The New Brunswick Advisory Board works with the New Brunswick chancellor in implementing the teaching, research, and service mission of the campus; engaging the campus with its local community, its region, and the state; and supporting its commitment to academic excellence, access, and diversity.

Rutgers–Newark Campus Advisory Board

The new Rutgers–Newark Advisory Board works with the Rutgers–Newark chancellor in implementing the teaching, research, and service missions of the campus; engaging the campus with its local community, its region, and the state; and supporting its commitment to academic excellence, access, and diversity.

Contacting the Boards

The Office of the Secretary of the University schedules all board meetings and is the liaison between the boards and the university community.

Purchasing and Procurement of Supplies, Equipment, and Services
If you are responsible for purchasing or leasing supplies, equipment, or services, please visit the University Procurement Services website for information on how purchasing and contracting work. Rutgers will operate under one purchasing policy and process to maximize savings and leverage our combined purchasing power starting July 1. All employees who were assigned to Rutgers prior to integration will continue to use the Rutgers Integrated Administrative System (RIAS) while legacy UMDNJ employees will continue to use the MarketPlace system in Banner for their purchasing needs. This will remain in place until administrators have decided which single system best suits the needs of the new Rutgers.

Best For Vets

Military Times Edge magazine, in its annual Best for Vets survey, ranks Rutgers third among U.S. four-year institutions for student veterans services. This is due in no small part to Rutgers employees such as Rutgers Office of Veteran and Military Programs and Services (l to r) unit administrator Drew Daddio, program coordinator Kimberly Bruss, director for veteran services Stephen Abel, and assistant director Robert Bright, who are dedicated to veterans’ concerns.

Head for Math

Rutgers ranks fifth in the world in the number of mathematicians in the inaugural class of Fellows of the American Mathematical Society. The other schools are the University of California, Berkeley; UCLA; the University of Michigan; and MIT.
School of Public Health
This school offers four degrees (M.P.H., M.S. in biostatistics, Ph.D. in public health, and doctor of public health), as well as dual degrees and postbaccalaureate certificates. Programs are offered in Newark, New Brunswick, and Stratford through eight departments: biostatistics; environmental and occupational health; epidemiology; health education and behavioral science; health systems and policy; dental public health; quantitative methods in epidemiology and biostatistics; and urban health administration.

9/11 in Real Time
School of Law–Newark’s Rutgers Law Review published “A New Type of War,” an online chronical of the events of 9/11 told through logs, audiotapes, transcripts, and radar data of the 9/11 flights. In its first few days of publication, the site logged 7 million visits from 173 different countries.
The Bright Side

In 2013, 28 Rutgers students earned prestigious Fulbright Scholarships, making Rutgers #11 in the nation among all research universities. Also in the group: Arizona State; Brown; Columbia; Harvard; Northwestern; the University of California, Berkeley; Chicago; Michigan; Texas at Austin; and Yale.

World Hunger

Joachim Messing, director of the Waksman Institute of Microbiology, is the winner of the 2013 Wolf Prize in Agriculture for his work developing a genetic engineering technique used in laboratories to create plants that have produced disease-resistant crops considered vital to feeding the world’s population.

Veteran and Military Programs and Services

Rutgers students and faculty, along with alumni and staff, have served in the U.S. military since the American Revolution. They have undoubtedly made sacrifices and faced hardships unknown to most other students. They, and those who will come home in the years ahead, have earned our respect, admiration, and most importantly support as they begin a new phase of their lives.

Rutgers Office of Veteran and Military Programs and Services (New Brunswick/Piscataway)

Established to help with issues that student veterans encounter as they transition from combat to campus, this office conducts orientation events, mentoring programs, and advising programs and can help student veterans with everything ranging from disability services to career services.

$6.2 Million
In the past six years, revenue from intellectual property created by our Rutgers Biomedical Health and Sciences researchers has increased from $0.16 M to $6.2 M. These discoveries have given birth to 24 brand new companies focusing on new diagnostics and therapies, right here in New Jersey. (Source: UMDNJ-Annual Institutional Profile, Sept. 1, 2012, page 207)
Libraries
The Rutgers University Libraries are among the nation’s finest and our academic library degree programs consistently rank among the top 10 in the United States. The library system has assets ranging from broad collections such as our universitywide digital library—which provides access to electronic journals as well as books, government publications, music, video, and more—to more specialized collections, such as the world-renowned Institute of Jazz Studies, which is home to the largest archive of its kind.

All That Jazz
Rutgers’ Institute of Jazz Studies is the largest and most comprehensive library and archive of jazz and jazz-related materials in the nation. Calling the institute “one of the world’s treasures,” documentary filmmaker Ken Burns accessed the institute’s resources when making his PBS film Jazz.

The Love of Art
The Zimmerli Art Museum at Rutgers University is one of the largest and most distinguished university-based museums in the country. The Center for the Arts at Rutgers–Camden is a year-round, multiverse arts institution presenting programs in the visual arts, performing arts, and arts education. The Paul Robeson Gallery at Rutgers–Newark is an artistic and cultural center dedicated to presenting art and cultural artifacts as well as educational and public programming.

A Friend of Small Business
The New Jersey Small Business Development Centers, based at Rutgers, help create or retain 10,000-plus jobs each year.
Major Clinical Programs

Although Rutgers has been engaged in clinical activities for many decades in such areas as autism, anxiety disorders, and HIV-prevention, the newly integrated clinical components of Rutgers—with their long history of providing high-quality, comprehensive patient care—greatly expand Rutgers’ clinical reach and ability to conduct clinical trials. From the latest dental techniques to primary care providers to specialized treatment facilities, these entities are at the forefront of health care in our state and in the country. This section of the guide introduces you to some of the major clinical components that are important parts of Rutgers.

Major Clinical Components

CANCER INSTITUTE OF NEW JERSEY

The Cancer Institute of New Jersey is the state’s only National Cancer Institute-designated Comprehensive Cancer Center, a coveted designation held by only 41 institutes nationwide and granted competitively to institutions characterized by scientific excellence and the ability to bring research discoveries to patients. The Cancer Institute of New Jersey delivers advanced comprehensive care for adults and children, including access to clinical trials; conducts cutting-edge cancer research; transforms discoveries into clinical practice; and provides education and outreach regarding cancer prevention, detection, and treatment. Managing more than 100,000 patient visits annually, the institute and its network of hospitals treat more than one-third of the state’s cancer patients.

CARDIOVASCULAR INSTITUTE OF NEW JERSEY

The Cardiovascular Institute of New Jersey at Robert Wood Johnson Medical School conducts research, education, and patient care with clinicians and scientists who collaborate across multiple disciplines. The institute translates new knowledge of heart disease and technology into practical applications and improves heart health by developing and pioneering integrative strategies to prevent, treat, and cure heart disease and train future leaders in cardiovascular medicine. The institute’s chief resources are its outstanding clinical services, research, education, and community outreach programs; its partnership with the Robert Wood Johnson University Hospital; and its University Behavioral Health Care (UBHC) offers a full continuum of behavioral health and addiction services for children, adolescents, adults, and seniors throughout New Jersey. UBHC's 1,100 experienced behavioral health professionals and support staff are dedicated to treatment, prevention, and education. UBHC, one of the largest providers of behavioral health care in the country, has 15 sites throughout New Jersey, with primary locations in Piscataway and Newark. Services are readily accessible and include inpatient, outpatient, partial hospitalization, screening, crisis stabilization, family/caregiver support, community outreach and case management, residential, supported employment, research, prevention, and consultation. UBHC's University Correctional Health Care unit provides mental and dental health and sex offender-specific treatment services for individuals in various New Jersey criminal justice systems.

Clinical Affiliations
Rutgers and legacy UMDNJ units have successfully developed many joint programs with affiliate hospitals and other health care facilities to provide a wide range of clinical experiences for its students and faculty. Affiliation agreements are made with health care entities that meet the most stringent criteria. These mutually beneficial arrangements allow schools to ensure students receive real-world practice in leading clinical environments, while both the schools and affiliates enjoy collaborations on clinical care, research, and community service.

Rutgers has relationships with hundreds of clinical affiliates in New Jersey and surrounding states. Lists of clinical affiliations can be found on many individual college, school, and institute websites.

Medical History
Our two medical schools and pharmacy school are the oldest and largest in New Jersey.
Research Basics

Research is fundamental to Rutgers’ mission and provides a vital and growing foundation for the academic, community, and clinical service elements at the heart of Rutgers’ excellence. The basic, clinical, and translational research at Rutgers—spanning an amazing range of disciplines in the arts and humanities and the life, physical, biomedical, and social sciences—contributes to advances in knowledge and technology that drive education and economic development and improve our lives and the global community.

Ceramic Expertise Earns Rutgers a $9 Million Role in Army-Funded Research: Rutgers’ longstanding expertise in ceramic engineering is being tapped by the military to develop armor that better shields soldiers from modern threats, particularly improvised explosive devices (IEDs). A Rutgers team is part of a research consortium that the U.S. Army agreed to fund with up to $90 million for as many as 10 years, with Rutgers receiving up to $9 million.

Revolutionary TB Testing: David Alland, professor of medicine, chief of infectious diseases, and director of the Center for Emerging and Re-Emerging Pathogens at New Jersey Medical School, invented the approach for a rapid TB test that won the endorsement of the World Health Organization. The test can accurately diagnose patients in about 100 minutes—significantly less time compared to conventional TB diagnosis.

The Rutgers University Cell and DNA Repository: Infinite Biologics is the largest university-based repository of its kind in the world. The repository receives more than $30 million annually in research funding from government, corporate, and private sources, and is a key international center for the study of genetics and autism, mental health, drug abuse, alcoholism, diabetes, and digestive and kidney diseases.
$702 million

New Jersey’s Largest R&D Enterprise

Research and development (R&D) expenditures at Rutgers totaling $702 million places us as New Jersey’s largest R&D enterprise and number 24 on the list of U.S. universities.

Inventions Lead to Honors: The 2012 New Jersey Inventors Hall of Fame honored neuroscientist Paula Tallal as Inventor of the Year. Her research has led to a growing global business that develops software to help children and adults with learning disabilities. Biochemist Sergei Kotenko won the N.J. Inventors Hall of Fame Patent of the Year Award for his discovery of powerful antivirals called interferon lambdas.

Genetic Answers: For less than $200, a new genetic carrier DNA sequencing test at the Institute of Genomic Medicine at New Jersey Medical School can screen for cancer and hereditary disorders such as cystic fibrosis.

Bugs vs. Bugs: Daniel Kadouri of the Rutgers School of Dental Medicine is using predatory bacteria in the battle against drug-resistant infections. Two in particular—Bdellovibrio and Micavibrio—are the fastest moving organisms in all of nature. The U.S. Department of Defense has invested more than $1.5 million in his work to help save soldiers coming back from war zones with deadly, antibiotic-resistant infections.

Research Resources

Office of the Vice President for Research and Economic Development

This office oversees the expansion and development of basic and applied research. Among the services provided is assistance with the development, funding, and operation of research centers and institutes, including those with corporate partners. Other key services include:

• External Awards Management
• Faculty Research Database
• Funding Opportunity Databases

Research Grants and Contracts

Research proposals, grants, and contracts and the relevant support important to faculty and staff is provided “pre-award” by the Office of Research and Sponsored Programs and “post-award” by the Division of Grant and Contract Accounting. These offices assist faculty members in their efforts to obtain and administer externally sponsored programs in accordance with the rules and regulations governing the programs. Their procedural efforts are intended to ensure that the university remains in good programmatic and financial standing with sponsors thereby encouraging a steady source of funding for the university and its faculty.

Office of Research and Sponsored Programs

This office assists faculty in preparing budgets, obtaining institutional approvals (including human and animal research approvals), and submitting completed applications. It also provides advice and assistance with sponsored program management and compliance issues.

Undergraduate Research

More than 60 percent of Rutgers undergraduate students engage in original research. Many of them work through programs like the Aresty Research Center, which assists undergraduate students in learning about the process of research, identifying faculty mentors or projects, defining research goals, seeking funding for a project, and presenting their findings to the university and the general public.

Division of Grant and Contract Accounting

This office is responsible for reviewing the terms and conditions of the award, assigning an account number, and entering an approved award budget for the investigator’s use in the university’s systems. The staff is ready to work with investigators who have questions with their budget and financial records and assist the investigator in making the necessary adjustments.

Business and Industry Resources

The Office of the Vice President for Research and Economic Development provides a key access point for business and industry. A universitywide professional team focuses on public-private partnerships, getting the right people in the room for high-impact, high-yield interactions among faculty and industry. The collaborations established through these programs create high-skilled jobs, foster an entrepreneurial approach, and attract and retain innovative, fast-growing companies in the state. Other functions of the office range from management and establishment of business incubation facilities and programs to strategic planning, needs assessments, business plans, and feasibility studies.

Our Second Nobel

Rutgers’ second alumnus to win the Nobel Prize, Milton Friedman (Rutgers College 1932) had an illustrious career as a professor of economics at the University of Chicago. One of the world’s leading proponents of the importance of the free market, Friedman won the Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences in 1976.
Maps

Whether you are a longtime Rutgers or a legacy UMDNJ employee, the integration brings with it new campuses to explore for everyone. From bustling cities to contemporary suburban landscapes and bucolic farms, Rutgers campuses span a wide range of settings. Refer to this section for maps to major campuses, as well as two of our additional locations.
